

Listening Part 4 Answers

Recently, a small grocery store owner reported another devastating robbery. This is the sixth time that such a crime has occurred in the area in just the past month. Robin Stanley has been running his family business, Stanley's Grocery Store, for over a decade, and is more than well-known around the community. Stanley says that he even knew of such robberies, and took the necessary precautions to enhance his security system. However, it is apparent that despite small-business owners' heightened safety measures, the police is still one step behind the culprit of this puzzling case. The local police chief, Mitch Rogan, explained in a statement from last week that the reason behind the perpetrator's evasiveness is that apparently he/she is quite an expert. Rogan says that in all the crime scenes so far, the robber has left close to no tracks. From lack of fingerprints to security camera evasion, it is evident that this is not the culprit's first rodeo whatsoever. However, police have continuously reassured the public that they are still actively working on the case and have deployed more than twice their usual amount of troops to gather further evidence. On behalf of the entire force, Rogan asserted that they acknowledged the detriment that such robberies have brought to small-business owners and that they refuse to rest until the perpetrator is caught and brought to proper justice in court.

1. Stanley

- a. Is currently working with the police
- b. Has given up on pursuing the robber
- c. Is a small-business owner with a good reputation
- d. Is disappointed in the police

2. Stanley made sure to

- a. Notify the police immediately about the robbery
- b. Improve his security regulations
- c. Catch the perpetrator himself
- d. Spread the news about the reoccurring robberies

3. Rogan explains the robber's evasiveness by saying that

- a. They're skilled in what they do
- b. They forget to leave behind tracks
- c. They have above average intelligence
- d. They're mocking the police on purpose

4. The police are

- a. Disappointed in themselves
- b. Frustrated at the entire process
- c. Diligently comforting the public
- d. Close to giving up

5. Rogan knows that

- a. The public is about to give up on the police force
- b. Small-business owners are vulnerable
- c. Stanley could've tried harder
- d. The robber is about to be caught